Key Vocabulary

preference - something we like the most.

historical periods - chunks of time that are grouped (Stone Age, Victorians, Tudors)

Today's Topic lesson is a shorter one than normal.
We will be reflecting on your learning from this half term and deciding which period of prehistory you would prefer to travel back in time to (Stone Age, Bronze Age or Iron Age)!

You will then write the reasons why you have chosen that period and draw pictures to illustrate this.

I can reflect and explain my choices.

Your task:

- Beneath this slide (or on paper), tell us which period you would prefer to travel back in time to.
- Explain why you have chosen that one, thinking about the ideas on the previous slide. and all of the history learning you have done.
- Draw a picture to show either the reasons why you have chosen that period OR of you in that period of time.

There's an example on the next slide to show you what your learning could look like.

Modelling

If I had a time machine, I would prefer to travel back to the...Stone Age!

There are lots of reasons why I would choose the Stone Age. Firstly, I really like that they didn't settle in one place. Moving camps in the Summer and Winter (or whenever the food in that area ran out) would make life quite exciting, I think. Also, the idea that the people carried everything that they needed to survive with them interests me - how cool it must be to know that you have the tools and knowledge to keep yourself safe with only the things you can carry! Another reason I would choose the Stone Age is that, even though there would be dangers all around you, I think it would be really peaceful. No car noise, no pollution, no busy people. I imagine it would be very calm a lot of the time, with just the sounds of nature around me.

Here's me in the Stone Age

(I may have cheated with the picture)

And with that... our Through the Ages topic is finished!
