Today you are going to write a diary entry as if you are one of the pigs in jail. If you think this will be too tricky - retell the true story of The Three Little Pigs. If you fancy a super mega challenge - do both and include some fantastic illustrations.

You now have ten minutes to plan your writing. I will include an example on the next slide. Remember you could use pictures and words to help you plan. If you want to use my plan to write from then you can.

Monday 1st February 2021

Dear Diary,

Today has been the most traumatic day of my life! You will never believe, Diary, what I have been through.

At dawn, I heard a thunderous hammering on my front door. Who could it be? I was terrified. My two brothers ran into my bedroom. Shaking, and still in our pyjamas, we hid in my bed with my quilt pulled tight over our heads. Then we heard it. POLICE! They came thundering up the stairs with their guns drawn. We were forcibly thrown into a cold, dark police van and driven to the police station.

After a breakfast of dry bread and water, I was dragged from my dark, damp cell by two burly policemen. They blamed me for our houses being blown down. The police said that my brothers and I had plotted to destroy our houses for money. We are innocent, why can't they see that? Even more sinister was the fact they said we had planned to boil the wolf alive so he couldn't tell the police anything. I felt my stomach drop through the floor. I could not believe that someone could think that of me.

In the afternoon, I was marched into court. There I stood, in my handcuffs, in front of the judge, lawyers, jurors and the spectators. My heart was in my mouth. The lawyers told the whole courtroom that we had planned to destroy our houses to claim on our insurance. I felt my fists clench. I was shocked that they could say that we destroyed our house for money. Being in the courtroom was utterly overwhelming. Although we were innocent, the lawyer said we planned to kill the wolf and they wanted to charge us with murder. My legs were like jelly - I could not believe they wanted to charge us with murder and insurance fraud.

The gavel banged. The judge and jury had made their decision. It rung around the courtroom...guilty. The colour drained from all of our faces and I fell to my knees. They had sentenced us to five long years in prison. The walk down to the cells was the longest walk of my life. I can't believe that they found us guilty. This is going to be the longest five years of my life.
